

The Treaty of Waitangi Collection

The online home for
Treaty scholarship

Access award-winning books anywhere, anytime
and on any device.

‘The Treaty Collection is invaluable. It holds all of the essentials’
Morgan Godfery, Sunday Star Times

From

Introducing the Collection

The Treaty of Waitangi Collection brings together leading thinking on this foundational document, including works by acclaimed scholars such as Claudia Orange, Judith Binney, Vincent O'Malley, Alan Ward and Aroha Harris. Designed and managed by award-winning New Zealand publisher Bridget Williams Books, the Collection is a living resource backed by a long-term vision for Treaty scholarship into the twenty-first century.

Key features

- » Authoritative content: Award-winning and foundational works such as the Claudia Orange series and Tangata Whenua: A History are central in the Collection.
- » Flexible and fast: Optimised for mobile devices – reflecting the needs of today's students and researchers – and viewable instantly using any modern web browser. Subscribers are given uninhibited access to books with no proprietary or complex technology getting in the way.
- » Connected books: Too often ebooks remain of poor quality, siloed within proprietary reading systems and isolated from wider web research workflows. BWB Collections addresses these frustrations head-on, including groundbreaking features such as the use of unbreakable web links and embedded biographies from the Dictionary of New Zealand Biography.
- » A living resource: Subscriptions will help fund the future digitisation and addition of books crucial to Treaty scholarship. Many important in-copyright works, beyond BWB's publishing, currently languish out-of-print and will be added to the Collection in the months and years ahead.

<http://treatyofwaitangicollection.bwb.co.nz>
collections@bwb.co.nz