Introducing the Collection

The BWB Texts Collection provides complete online access to this acclaimed series of short books on big New Zealand subjects. Packed full of fresh thinking, ideas and critical analysis, the Collection's authors include Shamubeel Eaqub, Rebecca Macfie, Morgan Godfery, Shaun Hendy, Veronika Meduna, Max Rashbrooke, Nicola Gaston, Kirsty Gunn and many more.

Accessed via any modern web browser, the Collection provides subscribers with easy and uninhibited access to a rich range of New Zealand knowledge. New BWB Texts are added regularly with over a dozen new works published annually. The BWB Texts Collection is a landmark digital resource for the future of reading, writing and thinking about New Zealand.

Key features

- » New Zealand's freshest thinking: BWB operates a commissioning team dedicated to the series, working closely with authors on incisive and timely new writing. Each BWB Text provides a high-quality and accessible introduction to a different aspect of New Zealand life.
- » High-profile and popular: BWB Texts are regularly in the headlines and the series enjoys a strong following. Texts are read in schools, government departments, think tanks, universities, at home, on the move and more – people love this short, snappy format!
- » Flexible and fast: Optimised for mobile devices – reflecting the needs of today's students and researchers – and viewable instantly using any modern web browser. Subscribers are given uninhibited access with no proprietary or complex technology getting in the way.
- » A fast-growing resource: New BWB Texts are published every few months, with at least a dozen new books added to the Collection each year. Regular events and media coverage of new Texts will continue to make this a sought-after digital resource.
